DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 1-49 are allowed.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

Regarding claim 1:

The closest prior art of record, Faucett (US 2002/0089906) does not disclose wherein the SUM signal data represents a summation of values from a plurality of focus sensors, and is different than a focus error signal (FES) representing a difference between a sum of the value from a first subset of the focus sensors and a sum of the values from a second subset of the focus sensors. Not only does Faucett not explicitly state this, but the Examiner has determined based upon the state of the prior art that Applicant is correct in their argument filed July 26th, 2006, that Faucett most likely relies upon a focus error or tracking error signal.

Claim 1 was also rejected over Hajjar et al. (US 5,742,573) in the previous Office Action, but Hajjar stores values from a position sensor, not a summation of values from a plurality of focus sensors.

Alternatively, Yanagi et al. (US 5,142,520) discloses:

a SUM table within which to record SUM signal data, the SUM signal data representing a summation of values from a plurality of focus sensors, and is different than a focus error signal (FES) representing a difference between a sum of the values

Art Unit: 2627

from a first subset of the focus sensors and a sum of the values from a second subset of the focus sensors (column 8, lines 15-25);

an error term generator to process the SUM signal data from the SUM table to produce an error term (column 11, line 65 to column 12, line 5); and an actuator control signal generator to generate an actuator control signal (column 11, line 65 to column 12, line 5: the focus offset value is an actuator control signal value).

However, Yanagi does not disclose "wherein the actuator control signal is a function of a prior actuator position, the error term and an adaptation coefficient, wherein the adaptation coefficient is configured to regulate a rate at which the error term is allowed to modify the prior actuator position." Yanagi instead calculates one focus offset value which is constant and used for the entire disc.

Although between them Yanagi and Faucett or Hajjar contain all elements of the claim, there is no motivation to combine the references: Faucett's invention is a repeatable runout compensator that could not work effectively with the procedure of Yanagi (which requires repeated tests at each sector with different offsets); Hajjar and Yanagi are not very similar and it would require significant changes to combine their teachings with no motivation provided by either reference.

Thus the combination of elements claimed renders it allowable over the prior art of record.

Regarding claims 16, 29, and 39:

These independent claims are similar to claim 1 and allowable for the same reasons.

Regarding claims 1-15, 17-28, 30-38, and 40-49:

These claims are allowable due to their dependence on an allowed claim.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
